Tarpon are on the run in Florida waters. When Senator Quay learns this he will move to hurry up that tariff business, or hunt up a "pair."

With a 20 per cent. duty on hides the unsophisticated American citizen who doesn't want to go barefooted may expect to pay more for his shoes.

Ex-Secretary Carlisle has decided to make his home permanently in New York. He relinquished his grip on Kentucky when he became the mouthpiece of Wall street.

A Kansas City paper announces as one of the attractions of that town that it "costs only ten cents to be buried" there. But there are lots of people who wouldn't hurry to be buried there if the job was done for nothing.

That Syracuse, N. Y., girl waked up after her 144 hour nap, and came down to supper as if she had been doing only the usual customary thing, and seemed to be surprised when her folks were surprised at her sauntering in to supper.

The "moonshiners" are not all in the rural regions. The internal revenue fellows lit on a still in New York the other day within a block of one of the most frequented parts of Broadway, which had been running full blast for four months. When they lit on it there wasn't anybody keeping house.

President McKinley has an uncle in San Francisco. He wanted to be postmaster and went to Washington with a big petition. He was about to get the job when the California delegation in Congress who had never heard of him kicked, and a compromise was affected by which he got the next place to the p. m.

The announcement that a Syracuse, N. Y., girl has been sleeping for a whole week has been probably made with the view of advertising that town's attractions as a nice, quiet place to rest. If this thing goes on, Philadelphia will have to hustle around and get up something to offset it.

The New York tea importers after first kicking against the proposed tax on tea, now want it retained. This is business. Anticipating the tax they loaded up with tea, and now want to rake in the additional tax, although the will not pay any tax, as they have the tea safe under roof.

The editor of the Topeka, Kan., State Journal, Rep., objects to the West being looked upon by Eastern people as "New England's back yard." Any section which can get up as big hail storms as that which recently dropped big chunks of ice on Topeka should object to that.

At the request of Mark Twain the fund which the New York Herald had started for his benefit has been declared off. In as much as the fund outside of what Mr. Bennett started it with, footed up only about $620, it was easier to call it off than pull it off.

Fourth of July Celebration at Carolina Beach.

Monday, the Fifth of July, will be celebrated at Carolina Beach as gloriously as the Fourth would have been, if the day had not fallen on the Sabbath. Besides the cool and inspiring sea breeze there will be many amusements, of various nature, to attract and delight. A match game of ten-pins, the winner of which will be presented with a handsome gold medal, is being arranged for that day. The runs of the steamer Wilmington to and from the beach will be under the auspices of Concordia Castle No. 1, Knights of the Golden Eagle. Two morning and two afternoon trips to the beach will be made. The committee, composed of members of Concordia Castle, who have the excursion in charge, is as follows: Messrs. G. W. Carter, J. S. Van-Lier and Edward Rhew, and the wedding march was rendered by Miss Lillie McCarson. Rev. W. L. Tart performed the ceremony, at the conclusion of which the happy couple repaired to the future residence of Mr. and Mrs. Rogers, on Greenville Sound, where a very enjoyable reception was tendered the bride and grpom.

At the Tax Listers'.

Mr. Bunting and his assistants did a fairly good day's work yesterday in receiving the lists of property and persons liable to pay poll tax. Quite a good many people have for one reason or another neglected the duty of giving in their taxes, and they are gladly availing themselves of the extension of the time. Tax-lister Bunting says that he thinks that property is being listed up more closely than in previous years.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

An Enthusiastic Meeting—Matters Pertaining to the Advancement of Wilmington Discussed—Progress Reported as Regards the Purchase of Brunswick Ferry.

The Chamber of Commerce held an enthusiastic meeting yesterday afternoon, which clearly evinced the fact that Wilmington's business men are fully alive to Wilmington's many and superior advantages.

President Chadbourn called the meeting to order shortly before 4 o'clock, with Col. John L. Cantwell secretary. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved.

On motion, the membership of Atkinson & Son was ordered transferred to the new firm of Atkinson & Chadbourn.

Mr. J. B. Mercer, of the committee appointed to confer with the commissioners of New Hanover and Brunswick counties in regard to the purchasing of the Brunswick ferry and causeway, reported progress. Mr. Marcus Jacobi, of the same committee, stated that the committee had held a meeting and would, no doubt, be able to make a full report at the next meeting.

President Chadbourn stated that the express charges on the books recently issued, setting forth Wilmington's various advantages, from New York to this city were very large, but Mr. W. J. Crosswell, superintendent of the Atlantic division of the Southern Express Company, had kindly had the express charges in the transporting of the books on the Southern Express Company's line refunded. A letter to that effect from Mr. Crosswell was read, and the secretary was instructed to address a letter to him returning the thanks of the Chamber.

Mr. H. G. Smallbones, of the committee appointed to procure suitable harbors for vessels to anchor in, reported progress.

President Chadbourn stated that a communication had been received from Harmony Circle, whose rooms the Chamber rents and uses as a meeting place, notifying the Chamber that the rooms would be needed by the Circle after October 1st. Mr. W. E. Worth suggested the building of a handsome building by the Chamber, each of the members, of which there are a hundred, to take about one hundred dollars stock each.

President Chadbourn suggested that each member act as a committee of one and see where the Chamber could obtain suitable quarters.

Mr. Worth said he thought it would be a good idea for all the members of the Chamber to get together some afternoon, go down to one of our Summer resorts and take supper, after which hold a meeting strictly in regard to the advancement of Wilmington. Mr. Worth further stated that there was no concert of action in Wilmington, which could soon be a city of 100,000 inhabitants, or more, if the people would only try and have it so, instead of continually running the city down; that Wilmington had more natural advantages, which, however, were not taken advantage of, than either Savannah, Charleston or Richmond. He also said that whenever a stranger came to the city there was some one who would always meet him and cry Wilmington down, and there was also a class of people who thought to succeed was a crime.

President Chadbourn and Messrs. T. D. Meares, H. G. Smallbones, Marcus Jacobi and others heartily endorsed Mr. Worth's remarks and spoke enthusiastically along the same line.

Mr. Worth also stated that a prominent railroad official had informed him in conversation that the freights from Wilmington were last year $60,000 in excess of the receipts of the year previous.

President Chadbourn appointed Messrs. R. N. Sweet, W. E. Worth and Marcus Jacobi as a committee to see and arrange for such a meeting of the members as suggested by Mr. Worth.

At 5 o'clock the meeting adjourned.

CHINESE VEGETABLES.

Shipments Being Made Daily—Only the Celestials Eat Them.

The article of truck that is being shipped most extensively from this immediate section just now is Chinese vegetables. About forty baskets were taken out by the Southern Express Company yesterday, and about the same number of packages is shipped every day.

Squash and balsam are some of the different varieties of Chinese vegetables, but the vegetable of the Celestial trucker is quite different from the corresponding American grown variety. In fact only the Chinese eat Chinese vegetables, and the shipments from here are all made to such names as Dock Wah, Yee Lung, Hop Sung, Wing Lee Long, etc.

Some of the growers in this section are Mr. Sol. Jones and his Chinese assistant, Ah Koy, Mr. Thomas Kenan and Chief of Police Melton. Ah Koy's farm is styled Lee Sang Yuen and all consignments are made to Lee Sang Yuen & Co.

Special Meeting—The Mayor Authorized to Negotiate a Loan to Pay Interest on Bonded Debt.

The Board of Aldermen met in special session last night. Present, Mayor Wright and Aldermen Keith, Twining, Hewlett, Benson, Green, Norwood and Walker.

Mayor Wright stated that the object of the meeting was to take steps to borrow money to defray current expenses, and requested Clerk F. B. Rice to read the following, which, on motion of Alderman Hewlett was adopted viz:

WHEREAS, A levy was made in the General Tax Ordinance of "Tax City of Wilmington," for the year 1896, for the purpose of paying interest on the bonded debt which was due January 1st, 1897, and July 1st, 1897, respectively, and for the necessary expenses of said city, said Tax Ordinance having been adopted by the Board of Aldermen June 23d, 1896, and approved by the Board of Audit and Finance July 7th, 1897; and whereas that portion of the taxes collected from the levy made for the payment of interest on the bonded indebtedness due July 1st, 1897, was used for the payment of the necessary expenses of the city, therefore be it ordered and directed by the Board of Aldermen of "the City of Wilmington," the Board of Audit and Finance concurring, and it is hereby ordered and directed by authority of the same that the Mayor and the chairman of the Board of Audit and Finance be authorized, empowered and directed to negotiate a loan, or loans, from three banks of the city of Wilmington, N. C., viz: Atlantic National Bank, Marchison & Co., bankers, and the National Bank of Wilmington; also, from J. H. Chadbourn & Co., William Calder, Smith & Gilchrist, W. E. Worth & Co., and C. W. Yates, sums of money aggregating the sum of twenty thousand dollars, for necessary expenses for the purpose of reimbursing the interest account used by the necessary expense account, as aforesaid, and the said Mayor, and the Chairman of the Board of Audit and Finance, are authorized and directed to execute and deliver therefor the notes of "The City of Wilmington," signed by the Mayor, and the Chairman of the Board of Audit and Finance, and duly attested by the Clerk and Treasurer of said City, with the corporate seal attached. It is further ordered and directed that at the option of the holder or holders of the notes for the above loan or loans, the said notes shall be receivable for taxes or other dues to "The City of Wilmington."

Alderman Keith said that the next regular meeting of the Board would be Monday, the day celebrated for the 4th, and suggested that the meeting be postponed until Tuesday, the day following, which suggestion was adopted on motion of Alderman Hewlett, the time of meeting being fixed at 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

On motion, the Board adjourned.

Rusie pitched for the Giants yesterday and Nichols for the Beaneaters. Boston won the game by timely batting and wild base running.

The Baltimore-Washington game yesterday was a tiresome one; besides, Umpire O'Day's decision caused plenty of kicking.

One more fool, Daub, of Brooklyn, got it in the neck. The Phillies hit him in yesterday's game safely twenty times, for a total of thirty bases.

Excursion to Carolina Beach.

About 300 people went down to Carolina Beach yesterday on the basket party given by the ladies of the Dorcas Society of St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran church. The crowd was just large enough to make it pleasant to all, and the day was spent most delightfully.

A WORTHY CHARITY.

Shelter of the Silver Cross—Opened for the Season Under Auspices of the King's Daughters—Services Conducted by Rev. W. B. Oliver.

The Shelter of the Silver Cross was formally opened yesterday afternoon. This institution, under the auspices of the Ministering Circle of King's Daughters, is in an unostentatious way doing as much for the comfort and welfare of the poor and feeble as any other agency in the community, and should receive more hearty and general consideration and support. Last year three hundred or more persons were given a restful week by the seashore, where their physical natures were refreshed, their mental powers revived, and their moral force strengthened—a season of recuperation and enjoyment which was in no other way possible for them. And yesterday afternoon thirty guests of the Shelter were made to feel themselves at home in the neat rooms, cool halls and breeze-swept verandas, among whom were gray-haired men, feeble women tottering amid the shadows of life's evening, young mothers with sickly babes, and pale-faced children. A look into their faces, radiant with anticipation, beaming with grateful joy, does one's soul good, and makes the visitor join in their prayer for God's blessing upon the noble women who have brought about such happiness by their service "in His name."

The attendance of visitors upon the opening services was not so large as usual. Possibly the excessive heat caused some to stay away. But there were quite a number of ladies present, mostly members of the order.

The services were very simple. "Take the Name of Jesus" was sung and Rev. W. B. Oliver, pastor of the First Baptist church, offered prayer, closing with the Lord's prayer, in which all joined. Then "Jesus, Lover of My Soul," was sung. Mr. Oliver read a part of the 15th chapter of John's Gospel and spoke for a few minutes on "Service, the highest attainment," as exemplified in the Christ and enjoined upon His disciples. The exercises closed with another prayer.

The cottagers on the beach have done a handsome thing in raising $125.00 to put in sewerage and necessary fixtures for the Shelter. This kindness is most highly appreciated by every friend of the institution and will add materially to its success.

There is an opportunity just now for other friends to do a nice deed, and we trust a hint will be sufficient. After faithful labors and untiring efforts, the Circle yet needs $100 to meet all expenses of the season. Who will step forward with cash, groceries or other substantial evidence of interest? Mrs. Charles King, the president, or Mrs. C. O. Byerly, secretary, will be glad to give information and to acknowledge contributions.

The STAR bids the Circle God speed, and wishes for the Circle years of successful benefaction.

Colored Girl Missing.

The police have been notified to keep a sharp lookout for Lizzie Eanett, a small colored girl, nine years old, who has been missing since yesterday morning. The girl lives in the country, about seven miles from the city, with her mother, Clara Eanett. Early yesterday morning she accompanied her grandmother, Brinky Judge, to town. Her grandmother left her at a house on Grace street, between Fourth and Fifth, with instructions to join her at the market. Lizzie started for the market between 10 and 11 o'clock, and has not been seen since. Her grandmother, after searching around the city and going out to her home in the country, without finding her, gave her up for lost and last night notified the police. The missing girl wore a blue calico dress and dark felt hat the rim of which is torn nearly off.

Sailing Party Given by Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Gautier, of Charlotte.

Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Gautier, of Charlotte, gave a most delightful sailing party at Ocean View beach last evening from 7 till 9.30 o'clock. The chaperones were Mesdames T. B. Gautier, G. R. Robertson and E. M. Roach. Composing the party were Misses Bessie and Julia Robertson, Mary Mayer, Sadie and Pearl Clarkson, Hattie Orr, Daisy Cullett, Rebecca Chambers and Addie Wilson, and Messrs. T. B. Gautier, Julian Gillespie, Nesbitt Latta, W. M. Foreman, J. W. Ragsdale, C. H. Barringer, David S. Yates, Charles G. Lewis, R. H. Pettis and S. O. Smith, Jr.

Weather in June.

The monthly meteorological summary of the Weather Bureau shows the weather conditions at Wilmington during June, 1897, as follows:

The mean temperature was 78°; highest, 98°, on the 30th; lowest, 64° on the 9th and 19th. The mean for 27 years, 77°.

The total rainfall was 3.88 inches, a deficiency in precipitation of 1.89 inches; the average for 27 years being 5.65 inches.

The prevailing direction of wind was west, with a maximum velocity of 28 miles on the 13th.

Without Foundation.

It is learned from an authentic source that the report of the resignation of Vice President St. John, of the Seaboard Air Line, is without foundation. Mr. St. John is expected in Norfolk on Sunday night and will be the recipient of a serenade on the following night. The contradiction of the report as to his resignation will be received with satisfaction by the many people who are cognisant of his strenuous and wisely directed efforts to build up the South.

—Mr. C. M. Whitlock, agent for the Pope Manufacturing Company, reminds us the STAR predicted a fall in the price of bicycles. That the reduction has come is shown by Mr. Whitlock's ad. in another column.

NEWS FROM RALEIGH.

A BARN-BURNER PARDONED BY GOVERNOR RUSSELL.

Local Taxation Bill Said to Be Legal—The State Guard—Excursions and Picnics—The Park Hotel—Warmest Weather of the Season.

[Special Star Correspondence.]

RALEIGH, N. C., July 1.

There were eleven deaths in Raleigh during June, eleven less than there has been in any June in nine years.

The committee on local taxation campaign will meet in Superintendent Mebane's room to day at noon. Superintendent Mebane is chairman and Prof. Atkinson secretary.

Mr. Edward Crawford will be manager of the Park Hotel for the proprietor, Mr. J. C. Brown.

The Baptist Tabernacle Sunday school will picnic at Occoneechee farm next week. This is their second picnic this summer.

About 1,000 colored people went on an excursion to Charlotte this morning. It was the annual excursion picnic of the Sunday school of the First Baptist church (colored), of which Jim Young is superintendent.

This is the warmest weather of the season. The thermometer reached 93 yesterday in stores which are generally pleasant. The people throng to Pullen Park at night or ride on the cars to try to cool off.

There are three States—Delaware, New Jersey and Pennsylvania—in which the tax on corporations defrays all the expenses of the State Government and no tax on personal property or real estate is collected for this purpose.

In the matter of the pardon of Lafayette Summerlin, convicted of barn burning at the Spring term, 1896, of Edgecombe Superior Court, and sentenced to twenty years in the State prison, Gov. Russell says: "This conviction is for barn burning—a most serious offence. The pardon would not be granted but for the high character of citizens who ask for it in writing, giving what appears to be sufficient reasons. It is urged by ex-Chief Justice Shepherd who presided at the trial, by the solicitor who prosecuted, and by ex Judge Phillips, of Edgecombe, who says in express words that with a full knowledge of the case, the offence having been committed on a plantation adjacent to his own, that he would grant the pardon if he were Governor. It is also recommended by prominent planters and merchants in the county of Edgecombe, by Mr. T. H. Gatling, chairman of the board of commissioners and by the other county officers of Edgecombe, and by Orren Williams, who has been chairman of the board for sixteen years, and it is asked for by a majority of the Bar of Tarboro. It is also urged by Messrs. Bradshaw and Wrenn, superintendents of State farms where the prisoner has been confined. It also appears that the prisoner has already served eleven years of his term."

Two Small Fires Yesterday.

Yesterday afternoon shortly after 1 o'clock, sparks from a blazing chimney set fire to the roof of a one story frame dwelling on Campbell street, between Seventh and Eighth. An alarm sent in from box 19, Eighth and Hanover streets, brought the Fire Department to the scene, and the flames were suppressed before much damage was done. The house is owned by Jos. Sampson, colored, and occupied by Henry George, colored.

Again at 2.30 o'clock the Fire Department was called up. This time the fire was situated in a two-story frame dwelling on Fourth street, near Princess, owned by Miss Sophia G. Campbell and occupied by Mr. A. Nathan and family. The flames were located between the ceiling of the first story and the floor of the second, and were caused by a defective flue. The damage is estimated at $50. The alarm was sent in from box 27, Third and Princess streets.

OHIO GOLD DEMOCRATS.

They Will Support the Regular Democratic Ticket—Can't Stand the Dingley Tariff—Ominous for Hanna.

[Washington Post Special.]

COLUMBUS, June 29.—In an interview Hon. Virgil P. Kline, the recognized leader of the gold Democrats who bolted the nomination of Bryan last year and voted for McKinley, announces that he will not co-operate with the Republicans this year, but that he prefers to vote for a silver candidate for Governor and other State offices. Mr. Kline says his reason for this is the utter indifference of the McKinley administration to the issues upon which the St. Louis ticket was elected. Instead of doing something to relieve the financial condition of the country, declares Mr. Kline, the administration has slapped the face of its allies of last year by encouraging the most offensive legislation.

Mr. Kline is the most influential of the Ohio gold Democrats and he undoubtedly reflects the opinions of nine-tenths of those who co-operated with him last year. The only notable exception is ex-Congressman Outhwaite, who favors straight gold State and Legislative tickets. Mr. Outhwaite's zeal in this direction, however, is suspected of being in the interest of Mr. Hanna's candidacy. Through the courtesy of the McKinley administration Mr. Outhwaite is holding his membership in the Board of Ordnance and Fortifications, to which he was appointed by Mr. Cleveland after his defeat for Congress. Mr. Outhwaite is without any following worth speaking of. This defection on the part of the gold Democrats is quite alarming to Mr. Hanna's friends, as their support was confidently relied upon.

CHEAPER BICYCLES.

The Combination Broken—A Heavy Reduction in the Price of Bicycles.

[N. Y. Herald, June 30th.]

The bicycle pool is broken after years of high prices, the ironclad agreement between the big manufacturers has gone to smash, and with it the prices of the high class wheels have slumped.

Colonel Albert A. Pope, of the Pope Manufacturing Company, yesterday announced that the price of the Columbia, '97, has been reduced to $75. This was supplemented by the announcement by the John P. Lovell Arms Company that the Lovell Diamond had been put down to $65.

The announcement of these cuts fell like a bomb on the smaller bicycle firms—those that sell $50 and $55 wheels. To them it probably means a struggle for existence, in which they have only a slight chance to come out victorious. One of the largest manufacturers said yesterday:

"It means that Colonel Pope is tired of the tactics of the small dealers and makers—men that list their wheels at a fair figure and then take whatever price is offered, provided it leaves any margin of profit, however small. I think the price will be still further lowered if such a course shall be found necessary to drive the small men out of business."

Mr. N. C. Overman said: "We shall not lower the price of our wheel, no matter what other concerns decide to do; but I feel sure there is going to be some stiff competition among the small fry."

Others said practically that a big bicycle rate war is on, and that the public will get some cheap wheels this Summer. But next year, when only one or two large firms are left, it may be different.

FRIDAY MORNING, JULY 2, 1897

YIELDING TO PRESSURE.

The reason assigned by the Republicans for wanting to tear up the Wilson tariff and pass another, was that the country needed a revenue tariff, one that would yield revenue enough to overcome the deficit, and give the Government money enough to meet its expenses and obligations. While they were doing this they declared that they would so levy duties as to give American industries the necessary incidental protection to enable them to compete with rival industries of other countries.

If they had stuck to that there would have been little complaint even by those who regarded the Wilson tariff as a very good tariff and one that would on a fair trial yield all the revenue that was necessary. But they didn't stick to that and had no idea of sticking to it when they began their work on the new tariff, for it soon became apparent that protection was the prime object in view and revenue the incidental. When the tariff of 1890 was framed the Republicans had the candor to admit that it was not a tariff for revenue with incidental protection but a tariff for protection with incidental revenue. In this they differed from the drafters of this tariff who while professing to frame a tariff for revenue with incidental protection have framed a tariff for protection with incidental revenue or no revenue at all. Revenue plays a subordinate part all through it while in some of its schedules it is practically prohibitory and is so intended to be.

This has become so manifest that it has provoked the condemnation of even Republicans of the protection type on account of the poor judgment displayed in the levying of duties and the industries adversely affected by the imposition of such duties. The dissatisfaction has been so emphatically expressed inside and outside of Congress that the Senate sponsors of the bill under discussion have found it necessary to offer an indirect apology for some of its absurdities. When confronted, Tuesday, by objections to the excessive duties proposed on pineapples, Senator Allison explained that there was "great pressure" brought to bear to secure the rates given in the bill. Great pressure. That's the secret of this whole unique and absurd job, which Mark Hanna, one of its sponsors, pronounces the "most scientific tariff ever given to the country." This pressure has been brought to bear by about every industry in the country and by some which have got along without protection for years.

The close vote in the Senate, and the division of the Senators into four parties, with "protectionists in spots" in all of them, has put it in the power of nearly every industry in the country to demand protection for itself. No demand was refused, for to refuse one was to imperil others in which more general interest was taken and which were regarded as of more importance. We might cite the fruit schedules, and the wool schedules as an illustration of this pressure, but putting hides on the dutiable list is perhaps a more striking one.

Hides have been on the free list for twenty-three years. They were put there by a Republican Congress. They are put back upon the dutiable list under the pretence that the cattle-growing industry needed this protection, when statistics show that the number of cattle in the country has doubled since hides were put upon the free list. The pressure brought to bear in this case was by the cattle slaughterers of the West through a few Senators whose votes were necessary to carry the tariff bill through. They put on the pressure, gave the screw a turn and hides after twenty-three years exemption from duty went back on the dutiable list.

The contradictory absurdity of this action consists in the fact that the kind of hides imported did not compete with domestic hides, for with the exception of goat skins which are not produced in this country for sale, about the only hides imported were thick skins, which our cattle do not furnish, and were imported for making sole leather. The hides for other purposes, which did not require heavy leather, were bought in our own market. The only beneficiaries of this absurdity will be the Western cattle kings, who will not give a sixpence a head more for the cattle, because of this protection, but will raise on the price of the hides they sell and make every man who buys leather, who buys a harness, a saddle, a leather trunk, a satchel, a pair of shoes or any other article made of leather, in whole or in part, pay tribute to them. The revenue from it will be insignificant for the importations, on account of the heavy duty, will be reduced to a very small figure, while it will operate disastrously against our trade with the countries of South America from which most of the hides were imported. We sold some of these twice or three times as much as we bought from them. We bought from Argentina last year, including hides $6,401,863 worth of products, and sold to her $11,210,475 worth of American products, mainly manufactured goods and agricultural implements, a difference of about $5,000,000 in our favor. With a 20 per cent. tariff on her hides Argentina will seek some other market for the goods she had been buying from us, and thus we suffer because the Republican tariff builders yielded to pressure and put it in the power of the cattle kings to levy tribute on the American people.

As showing how the people of South American countries regard this blow at them we quote the following from some remarks made by a leading member of the South American delegation which attended the recent South American trades congress at Philadelphia. Speaking in the Chamber of Commerce of Cincinnati while visiting that city he said:

"We have been exporting to your country our hides during the past twenty-five years free of duty, but now you have taxed them with 1½ cents per pound. You may consider how much this duty will affect our trade when you think we have over 22,000,000 of oxen. We have been treated in an unfriendly manner, and at the same time you submit to us the idea of a reciprocity treaty. I am very sorry to say that under the circumstances the statesmen of the Argentine Republic will not accept any kind of treaties, not only for certain reasons that you can easily understand, but because our products are exported free of duty to England, France, Germany, Belgium and Italy, and we receive from Europe all the goods we require, all the capital that we need for our commercial development and all the immigration necessary to populate our extended territory.

"As we find no compensation nor any reason to tie ourselves to the United States under the present circumstances, we think that, taking into consideration the protectionist doctrines of this country, we have nothing to do but to use the same principle in our own defence and impose prohibitive duties upon all the American goods that may be imported into Argentine Republic. We regret very much to take such action, but we will be compelled to do so, and it is convenient to note that Europe is trying by all means to hold the Latin-American markets, and is sending to all of the republics to study the resources, the commerce, and the financial state of each.

"I think I am right when I call your attention to the opportunity that is offered to you to control the markets of Latin America, which offers a most extensive field for the consumption of your manufactured products. All you have to do is to put to one side the obstacles that I have noted, so that the way will be completely open and the commercial relations with the country of Washington can be easily extended."

The speaker was the editor of the leading paper published in Argentina, one of a number of progressive Latin Americans who came to this country, on invitation, to devise ways and means to cement closer trade relations between this country and the countries they represented; but when they came they found themselves confronted by this discrimination against the products of those countries, and all because the Republican statesmen, for political considerations, yielded to the "pressure."

MINOR MENTION.

Public attention, politically speaking, will be for some time turned on Ohio, where the indications point to a pretty warm contest. That the Democrats have strong hopes of carrying the State is shown by the number of candidates in the field for State offices, and the further fact that the contest in the convention was not over the platform, but over the candidates. Generally speaking, when the outlook is not encouraging, candidates have to be conscripted, but when it is the other way, they are not, to quote the Celtic son of Mars, "backward in coming forward." The fact that they unanimously resolved to make the fight on the single issue of the free and unlimited coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1 is another indication of confidence, as it is an illustration also of courage that boldly faces the main issue, leaving the minor issues for future action. The Silver Republicans and Populists previous to the Convention, professed not to care for a division of offices, provided the platform was sufficiently emphatic on the silver question, but it seems they changed their minds when they were taken at their word, and when they found they couldn't get the offices then they wanted them, and became indignant because no offer of a divide had been made. This is not altogether surprising, for there are some people so constructed that they would walk around a grass plot for six months without stepping on it, until the owner put up a warning to "keep off the grass," and then they would get on it at the risk of being hit with a brick. We expect that's the kind of fellows the Silver Republicans and Populists of Ohio are. If they nominate tickets as they threaten to do it will complicate matters somewhat, and possibly help the Hannacrats out at a time when they will need all the help they can get.

As we understand it, in the case of the Southern Railway against Gov. Russell and others, Judge Simonton decided one point that was not really an issue, as to the right of the North Carolina Railroad to lease; decided the second rather in accordance with the letter than with the letter and spirit of the charter, both of which should be taken together. Perhaps if when the charter was granted the probability of a 99 year lease had been anticipated it would have been a little more definite as to the powers of the directors. The third point on which now the whole question hinges is left in statu quo for further investigation. Fraud may have been intimated, but we do not think it has been specifically charged against any of the directors, and we do not think that such a thought is seriously entertained by any one, but it is believed that the lease was precipitated six years in advance of the expiration of the existing lease by threats of constructing a competing line, which would seriously affect the value of the North Carolina railway. As we see it it is more a question of equity than of law, that is as to whether the charter was not too liberally construed, under which construction and the pressure that was brought to bear upon them the directors exceeded the powers intended to be vested in them according to the spirit and letter of the charter. The State was defrauded in the first lease, and she was defrauded in the second more than in the first, whether intentionally or not. It was simply, as far as the Southern Company is concerned, a case of taking the State by the throat and holding on.

—— The duty on borax of four cents a pound is equivalent to an ad valorem rate 485 per cent. This was one of the taxes demanded by Senator Jones, of Nevada, as the price of his support of the Tariff bill. The tax is laid in the interest of the Pacific Borax Company, a monopoly largely controlled by English investors; and as the amount of borax used in this country is over twenty million pounds, it will put a great deal of money in the pocke's of the enterprising stockholders of that corporation. This borax tax ought to be dubbed a tax on washerwomen.—Philadelphia Record, Dem.

To Wash Silk Underwear.

Great care should be taken when washing silk underwear. Soap never should be rubbed directly upon the garment. Strong soap suds made of warm water and white soap will be found best. Squeeze the garment in this water, and then, if the garment is very much soiled, pass it through another warm suds and then rinse in very lukewarm water. Press between the hands to get out the water. Shake well and pull into shape, and when the garment is nearly dry press it on the wrong side with a moderately hot iron.—Brooklyn Eagle.

The Butter Spreader.

The butter spreader which goes with the bread and butter plate is the one knife on the table which is placed with the sharp edge out. The plate is placed at the left and just back of the regular plate, and the spreader lies in front of it, with the sharp edge to the front. It may be placed at the right of the bread and butter plate when it lies with the edge in, as with the other knives. Thus placed, the knife is most easily taken. Common sense rules the setting of the table, as it does other ceremonies of life.

Rust on Linen.

The following excellent method of removing stains of iron rust from linen is in use at the laundry of the Bedford branch of the Brooklyn bureau of charities on Fulton street: The spot which has the stain of iron rust is moistened and generously rubbed with cream of tartar. The article is then tightly rolled and placed in a boiler of tepid water, where it remains until the water boils. When unrolled, the stain will be found to have disappeared.

THE DOLL PACIFIED THE INDIANS.

A Present to a Papoose Cooled the Apaches Into Subjection.

"A gentleman from the ground up—the finest gentleman in the regular army," was the way an old Omaha reporter referred to Major John G. Bourke, formerly aid to General Crook. And then, warming up to his work, the old reporter told the following:

"They used to tell a story of Mr. Bourke when he was down in Arizona with Crook that shows the kind of a man he is. The general was trying to put a band of Apaches back on the reserve, but could not catch them without killing them, and he wouldn't do that. One day they captured a papoose and took her to the fort. She was quiet all day, saying not a word, but her black beads of eyes watched everything. When night came, she broke down and sobbed as a white child would. The fort was in despair until Mr. Bourke had an idea. From the adjutant's wife he borrowed a doll, that was a beautiful creation and had come to the adjutant's little girl the previous Christmas. When the young Apache was made to understand it was hers to keep, her sobs ceased and she fell asleep. When morning came, the doll was still clasped tightly in her arms. She played with it all day, just as any child who had been educated to play prettily with its make believe babies would have done, and seemingly all thought of ever getting back to the tribe, under the spell of enchantment placed over her by the doll, had left her.

"Not so the officers of the post, however, for the thought of having to keep the papoose without having the tribe make some inquiries as to its welfare bothered them to no inconsiderable extent. Several days passed with no sign of overture being made by the tribe, and finally in despair the papoose, with the doll still in her possession, was sent back to the tribe. Major Bourke, who was then a first lieutenant, when the child was sent back to the tribe, had no idea of the effect his benevolent act to the papoose would have upon the crafty band of aborigines. When the child reached the tribe with its proud prize tightly grasped in its chubby hands, it created a sensation among the native Americans, and her mother later went back to the post with it. She was received in a hospitable manner and kindly treated, and the effect of her visit was such that through her overtures were made to the tribe, with the result that soon afterward the whole band moved back on the reserve.

"Major Bourke, in all probability, when the kind act was done, in order to placate the heartbroken papoose, had no idea of its ever being of such service to General Crook and his forces. It saved them from engaging in a bloody battle, in which the lives of the Apaches and Uncle Sam's forces would have been jeopardized to such an extent that many would have been killed or maimed for life and made possible what is seldom accomplished, the placing of a large body of one of the most barbarous tribes on the American continent back on the reservation without the loss of a single life. The Apaches were of the same tribe as that which Geronimo made do such deadly work not so many years ago."—Portland Oregonian.

PHYSICAL CULTURE.

VALUABLE TIPS FOR WOMEN WHO WANT TO BE HEALTHY.

The Importance of Eating Only the Right Kind of Food—How Athletes Are Trained—The Bad Effects of Incorrect Ways of Standing.

Delicate women are out of date. There was a time when it was considered fashionable for a woman to faint frequently, grow hysterical over trifles, and have at least one chronic ailment. Today such a woman, instead of being cuddled and made much of, is passed hurriedly by with a word, not of sympathy, but rather of scornful pity. She is refered to as "Poor thing!" And if there is one thing that will make a woman cast off her invalid ways it is that phrase.

Women nowadays are turning back to the ways of the Spartan girls, who believed that the physical training of the sexes should be identical and practiced what they preached. They were taught to run, to leap, to cast the javelin, to play ball and to wrestle. Their Athenian sisters did nothing of the sort and were not comparable to the Spartan girls. Once an Athenian said to the wife of Leonidas:

"You Spartans are the women who rule men."

"Yes," she answered, "and we are the only women who bring forth men."

There is a lesson in this retort for all womankind. American women, be it said to their credit, are beginning to apply it. Old women, young women and schoolgirls are giving more attention than ever before to physical culture. Three women were discussing the general interest in physical training for women, in a restaurant not long ago. It was one of those little places where a man feels himself conspicuous, for it was patronized almost exclusively by women shoppers. One of the talkers was white haired, another was middle aged, and the third was an athletic looking girl just out of her teens. The middle aged woman turned out to be a teacher of physical culture, and she talked in such a clear, practical way that pretty soon all the women at the nearby tables were listening to the conversation of the trio. It all started this way:

"I wouldn't order chocolate eclairs if I were you," said the middle aged woman.

"Why not?" asked the girl. "I'm not in training now. As long as I was on the basket ball team at Vassar I wouldn't have dreamed of giving such an order, but I'm a graduate now, and chocolate eclairs are so good."

"They aren't good for you," insisted the middle aged woman. "You told me yourself that you were never in such perfect health as when you were in training and confined yourself to nutritious, wholesome food."

"That's so," acquiesced the girl meekly, but without countermanding her order.

"Physical culture teachers as a rule make three mistakes," continued the middle aged woman, salting her rare roast beef vigorously by way of emphasis. "I think the first three questions they should put to a pupil are: What do you eat for breakfast, luncheon, dinner and between meals? How do you sit, and how do you stand?"

"Why, what funny questions!" exclaimed the girl digging into the middle of eclair No. 1.

"Not at all," answered the physical culturist. "Standing is a lost art, and as for sitting, so far in the history of this world of ours it has never become an art. When it comes to eating—well, I feel almost hopeless about eating. I fear that women will never learn to eat."

"What queer notions you do have," commented the girl, ordering a double portion of ice cream. "Vanilla and chocolate mixed, if you please. I'm sure I have a good, healthy appetite," she went on, "and I think I not only know how to eat, but enjoy it."

"Yes, I won't dispute that," replied the middle aged woman, "but you insult that appetite, which is the craving of a strong, healthy stomach, by giving it eclairs and ice cream instead of giving it the proper food. Nearly all young women do the same thing. Every time you do that you weaken your muscles, which you tell me you are so anxious to train. You cannot possibly train a muscle unless you have given it the proper food. Now, I'm not a crank on dietetics, but every teacher of physical culture, every director of a gymnasium, every master of a swimming school, every instructor in a bicycle academy, should pay a great deal of attention to what their pupils eat, and try to impress on each pupil the necessity of proper food.

"Every boy is anxious to become a Fitzsimmons, and if his instructor in gymnastics will tell him what food is best for him to take he will have it, or make life a burden for his mother. The same is true of a girl. Let the teacher tell a girl that certain things will harden the muscles of her body, giving her a firm, graceful figure, and certan other things will make the muscles of her cheeks firm, which is one of the secrets of retaining a pretty complexion, and she'll confine herself to those things.

"Up to this time," the enthusiast continued, "girls and women have devoted their attention almost exclusively to the development of their arms and legs. This is a great mistake. Women need, even more than men, to give much attention to the development of their vital organs. The legs and arms work much more easily if the vital organs are well developed. Women should be trained from the time they are out of swaddling clothes to hold the abdominal muscles tense. Then we would hear of no such thing as displaced organs."

"Oh, it's so interesting," exclaimed the girl. "You said something about women not knowing how to stand correctly."

"Well, I told the truth," said the enthusiast. "They don't. Watch 'em as they file up to the desk there to pay their checks. At least 25 have been up since we've been sitting here, and not one has stood correctly. Look at that stout woman there now, with her abdomen thrown out and the upper part of her body held back. She probably lies awake nights worrying because she is losing sight of her waist, and yet her habitual method of standing is just the cause of the trouble. Glance at the thin, delicate looking woman behind her. The position of her body is all wrong. You can see that her abdominal muscles are thoroughly relaxed. So it is with the next in line. The fourth woman throws nearly all her weight on one side when she stands, and you can see that this has changed the shape of one hip. Thus it goes. One woman stands so that one shoulder grows higher than the other or her back gets twisted, and another becomes lopsided in some other way. A mother or teacher who does not train the young intrusted to her care to stand correctly is guilty of almost a crime. The harm done to the outside of the body is nothing compared to the injury done to the machinery inside."—New York Sun.

Gilt China.

It is possible that our grandmothers understood how to preserve the gilt on the pretty china which they have handed down in such excellent condition to their descendants. Soap has a disastrous effect upon the gold as well as the colors in fine china. Dishes should not be washed in soap if they are not greasy, and a little grease can easily be removed with small crusts of bread or soft paper. The contact with metal is dangerous for china, and it should be drained in a wooden or paper bowl or a soft piece of Turkish toweling can be placed in the drainer before the china is put in.

Cultivate Exercise.

When a girl "comes out" and escapes from the daily routine of the schoolroom, she is very much inclined to give up taking regular exercise. No doubt she will go for a 20 or 30 mile run on her bike one day when she feels particularly active, but it is more than likely that, in consequence of other attractions, she will not ride again for three or four weeks. The girl who wishes to keep fresh and young in spite of a round of gayety should cultivate the habit of exercise. It will become as essential to her that she will not be able to do without it when her girlhood is passed, and consequently her health and her figure will be preserved in a way which would not be possible had she led an inactive life.—Exchange.

A Nautical Yarn.

Admiral Erben told the following story on the late Admiral Gregory when the latter was a captain in the navy. The latter was serving in European waters and had taken his ship into Malta, where a British ship was lying. The idea of hospitality in those days was to entertain a man until either host or guest went under the table, and the work was not considered well done until this had been accomplished. They kept changing the officers on Captain Gregory when he went to call on the English officers, and, seeing that he would not be able to stand the strain of the brandy, the American quietly raised his glass and let the liquor down inside his old fashioned stock necktie. He kept this up until the British captain was taken to bed by his steward. Then Captain Gregory called for a fresh bottle of brandy, took another, smoked a pipe, went on deck, talked with the officer of the watch and was rowed back to his ship. The next day when the Englishman awoke he called the officer of the watch and asked him when Captain Gregory left the ship. Told the hour, he said, "Well, was he screwed?"—a nautical term of a particular condition. He was told that the American was sober. Then he sought his cabin steward and asked the same question. "No, sir," remarked the steward. "He was all right, but I never did see a man sweat as he did, sir."—New York Tribune.

WINTER SLEEP.

I know it must be winter, though I sleep—
I know it must be winter, for I dream
I dip my bare feet in the running stream,
And flowers are many, and the grass grows deep.

I know I must be old (how age deceives)—
I know I must be old, for, all unseen,
My heart grows young, as autumn fields grow green,
When late rains patter on the falling sheaves.

I know I must be tired (and tired souls err)—
I know I must be tired, for all my soul
To deeds of daring beats a glad, faint roll,
As storms the riven pine to music stir.

I know I must be dying (death draws near)—
I know I must be dying, for I crave
Life—life, strong life—and think not of the grave
And turn my bound silence in the frosty year.
—Edith M. Thomas in New York Tribune.

THE RIVALS.

"Yes, sir. That old shuntin engine that's puffin an snortin like a broken winded old horse could tell a tale, if it wasn't so short o' breath. That's the very engine old John Wright used to drive when I was his stoker. Let me see—I've been drivin three year—aye, it'll be ten year come next September. He was a fine figure of a man, was John. He stood 6 foot 1½ in his stockin's, an was broad in the shoulders too. In his greasy peaked cap an oily blue jacket he looked a giant. He was a queer un. I used to tell him he needed a wife to look after him. Ha, ha! He always made his tea wi' water out o' th' engine boiler, an when I laughed at him, he'd slap me on the back, an say, 'What's good for the horse is good for the rider, Harry.' He was a rare old sort."

"Was he an old man?"

"Oh, no; he'd be 40 odd, I suppose, but I was a young man of 23, an he seemed old, like, to me. As I've said, he was a bachelor, an, as far as I knew, likely to remain one. There wasn't much of the ladies' man about John. But still waters run deep, they say, an John Wright had his little secret.

"About three mile out o' town, I used to notice that he whistled three times and always looked across a couple o' fields a bit farther on, as if he were lookin for somethin. I asked him once or twice what it was, but he edged me off, an changed the subject, so I didn't press it. But I kept my eyes open.

"It was early winter when I first went on to stoke for John, an, of course, bein a goods train, it was generally gettin on for 6 o'clock at night when we passed this particular spot, bound for Barnham, 50 mile away. It's 'up bank,' as I dare say you know, from here to Longbridge, eight mile up the line, an we never got any great speed on until we'd passed that length, especially when we'd a heavy freight. But all I could make out for some months was the dim outline of a cottage that had an 'up stairs' window with a red blind. The cottage lay a couple o' fields away. What made me notice the red blind was that, as we passed, the window was always suddenly lighted up.

"Aye, an so was John Wright's face soon as ever he saw it. Such a smile—an he had a kind face, had old John—an then he'd seem lost a bit, as if he were thinkin o' somethin as was good to think about.

"I couldn't make it out, for you see I looked on John as a musty, crusty old bachelor, for all he were such a good sort. But the light nights let the secret out. It were no use of his keepin his tongue tied then; for there, in th' little front garden, across them two little fields, was a pink frock, an a sunbonnet an a little hand flutterin a bit of a hankychief as we passed—every night, as true as the clock.

"I chaffed John rarely about it, first time I saw it, an he blushed—he did indeed, sir! Though his face was grimy on the top and copper color under that, I'll swear he blushed. But he looked pleased an proud, for, by that time, we'd grown such thick friends that I'm sure he didn't mind me knowin.

"Then, bit by bit, it all came out. John and her father, who used to be pointsman at Chubb junction, half a mile farther up the line than the cottage, had been lads together. John had gone up for a 'camp' every Sunday for many a year. He'd known Mary Mathers since she was born, an when she was a little lass he'd nursed her on his knee, an told her he'd wait for her. I dare say he meant it in fun at the time, but, as she grew up, he knew he liked to be where she was better than anywhere else in the world. That's how he put it, sir. Then Tom Mathers, her father, fell ill, an I learnt afterward, an I guessed even then, that John Wright made his wages keep four instead of one. Mary's father never worked again. He was on his back for 18 months, an then he died.

"An then, you may be sure, John was a father to the fatherless, an a husband to the widow—as far as lookin after 'em went, at any rate—only he wanted to be a husband to the daughter, Mary. Of course, I learnt this bit by bit, an I can't help fillin in things as come to my ears years after, for John was never the man to blow his own trumpet. 'Ha, ha! He was well content wi' the steam whistle—especially when passing Railway cottage. Poor John!

"Well, to cut a long story short, Mary seemed to make no objection. Why should she? She'd never met anybody she liked better, and a finer fellow than John Wright never walked. He got her to promise to light the lamp in the room wi' the red blind on dark nights as he passed on his engine, an to give him a wave of her hand on light nights, for he said it was somethin to be goin on with like. He'd a touch o' sentiment in him, had John, aye, he had that.

"One Saturday night he says, 'Harry, you'd better walk o'er wi' me tomorrow.'

"'Walk o'er wi' you,' I says. 'Where?'

"'Why, to Mrs. Mathers,' to be sure. I'd like you to know my Mary. An then you can tell me what you think o' my sweetheart.' An as he said it that sweet, far off look came in his face, an I knew he loved that lass as few lasses are loved.

"Well, I went, an I wished at the time I'd staid away. It was love at first sight of me, an I felt I should never, never be the same again. God forgi' me, but after that Sunday I felt at times I hated John Wright. When she stood at the stile, at the crossing midway between the cottage an the signal box—as she did every evenin from the very day I went wi' John—an waved her hand to him, bashfullike, an he threw her a clumsy kiss, I felt I could ha' knocked him off the engine.

"I fought again it—an, you must understand, I didn't feel that way all the time, for we were good friends, an no one would have seen a difference. But when he talked of her in his quiet way—of bein wed an such like—it was like knives in me.

"Then he pressed me to go again an spend a Sunday at the cottage. I put him off, but he wouldn't take 'no' for an answer. So, whether for fear of hurtin his feelins or because I couldn't keep away, I can't say, but I yielded an went. After that I went several times, an each time I got deeper an deeper in love with John's sweetheart, aye, an what seemed worse, I couldn't help knowin that Mary was troubled the same way. But I will say this, I never tried to make Mary love me, an never a word of love passed between us, but sometimes I thought I saw trouble in John's eyes, an then I'd vow to myself to go no more.

"Often enough I'd be on th' front o' th' engine, or on th' tender, when we passed the stile that summer an do as I would, I couldn't help but look to catch her eye. An I never missed, though she waved her hand to old John.

"One evenin, in the early autumn of that year, we were goin at as good a speed as the incline would let us an just gettin toward the cottage. John had sent me round to th' front o' th' engine with my oil can, an I couldn't help lookin ahead to see if Mary was standin waiting at the stile. Yes, she was there as usual, right in front of us, for the line curved to the right just at the stile, an was hidden from view behind a little wood. I could see her print dress, an the same white linen bonnet she wore when I first saw her in the garden on that spring evenin. Oh, how my heart went out to her, an how that old wicked feelin toward John rushed through me an made my nerves tingle from head to foot.

"'Mary had her back toward us—a very unusual thing—an I remember wonderin why. Then the usual three whistles sounded, short an sharp. She turned instantly an threw up her hands like one demented. We went thunderin down to the crossin where she stood an I saw her eyes starin at me, like coals of fire set in a face as white as chalk. She fascinated me.

"Just then old John shut off steam an I heard him doin a thing he'd never done afore—reversin the engine! All of a sudden Mary seemed to wake up an find a horrible dream true, for I heard, above the roar of the train, the grindin of the rails, an the shriek of the brakes that had been jammed hard down—I heard one piercing scream. It was a word—my name—'Harry!'

"Of course, all this happened in a breathless second or two. Half a lifetime is sometimes squeezed into a half a minute, sir. I took my eyes from Mary's face as we passed her, standin as if turned to stone, an I looked ahead. Heavens, what a sight! Bearin down on us at a great speed was an engine an tender—a runaway! It was comin down the bank tender first, an we were timed to meet at the junction. I saw it all in a flash. The train was jumpin like a buckin horse, an, with my body all of a tremble, I'd as much as I could do to get back to the footplate.

"There stood John Wright, of course. I seemed to see him an naught else. He'd done all man could do, an was standin stock still, with one hand on the lever. But it wasn't his stillness that made the tears start to my eyes. It was the look on his face. It made me nearly forget the doom to which we were rushin. I can't describe it. It was the look of a man who has nothin left to live for—whose hope had been suddenly wiped clean out forever.

"The instant he saw me his face changed. He sprang toward me, an seizing me by the arm with a grip of steel, spoke in a hoarse whisper that could be heard above everything: 'Jump off, my lad—you've time—you can do it. Jump off, for her sake. She loves thee, lad; she loves thee, for her sake. Harry, for heaven's sake!'

"I said, 'Nay, John.'

"'Quick,' he says. 'Harry, Harry! Jump for your Mary's sake!'

"I swung one leg off the engine—life was dear—an prepared to spring into the grass. Then a great, surgin love for this man came over me, and I turned suddenlike an took him by the hand and I says, 'John, we'll stick together an die together—if it's God's will—for her sake.' An he just gave me that sweet look an step in front of me, as if to put his great frame betwixt me an death, an there came a crash as if heaven an earth had met, an I seemed to roll over an over, an then it felt as if the whole earth had risen up an smitten me, an I knew no more.

* * * * * * * *

"I woke from a troubled dream that seemed to have lasted a lifetime, an opened my eyes, half conscious an not sure but I was still dreamin. Then I slipped off again, an I remember thinkin that the sweet eyes that mine had seemed to meet were the eyes of my guardian angel. An they were, sir, for, when I opened my eyes again all the past came back to me with the tearful face of Mary Mathers.

"I put my hand out on the counterpane, an she put hers gently on the top of it. An believe me, sir, that's the only way I ever 'popped the question.' We'd been through too much together to need much fuss.

"'Where is he?' I framed my lips to say. I don't know whether she heard, but she understood, for she put her hand into her bosom, an drew out a black edged card an held it before my eyes, while her own filled again with tears. I read, 'In loving memory of John Wright, who was killed at the post of duty.'

"'And you've been happy in your married life?'

"'Happy! Happy isn't the word for it, sir. Ours is one of the matches made in heaven."—London Tit-Bits.

Wrecked on Fort Fisher.

Technical training in any profession is a good and necessary thing, but it must be supplemented by careful and constant practice in order to eliminate the chances of danger, especially on board ship.

In 1863 the United States frigate B. was cruising off the Virginian coast under the command of Captain H. Captain H. had under his charge a number of young and enthusiastic midshipmen, graduates of the naval college at Annapolis.

It was his custom to have them take the position of the ship at noon each day when he took his own observations. Very often it happened that their calculations did not tally with his, but this only made him the more anxious to exercise them in so necessary a mathematical problem.

One day he was sitting in his cabin, as usual, at noon, after he had completed his calculations, and waiting for his "middies" to bring in theirs. The first came in almost immediately, visibly elated at having finished his task so soon and, as he believed, so correctly.

The captain took one look at the figures and then leaped from his seat so quickly that the astonished midshipman started back in alarm. Almost exploding with laughter, the old captain curved his hands before his mouth and hurried to the companionway.

"Clear away the boats!" he roared. "Clear away the boats! We're wrecked, hard and fast aground on top of Fort Fisher!"

There was a howl of laughter from on deck, and the erratic young man grasped his papers and rushed past the captain and out of the cabin without waiting for ceremony.—Youth's Companion.

Vegetable Diamonds.

The alkaloid of Calycanthus glaucus, discovered and first extracted by Dr. Eccles, may be obtained in crystals which from their high refractive power sparkle very much like diamonds. Some were shown at a recent meeting of the New York section of the American Chemical society. This alkaloid has the highest refractive power of any known organic substance. A nitroso compound of calycanthine is thalleiocanthine. This forms dark colored salts that in dilute solution are a brilliant green. No therapeutic application of the alkaloids has yet been announced.—Popular Science News.

To Look Young Dress In the Latest Style.

The most essential point perhaps in attaining every woman's object of looking young is to dress always in the latest mode. The French understand this to perfection; the English do not even pretend to. A dowager wears gowns of from 5 to 95 years old in style. A grande dame Parisienne looks always as though she had just stepped from the atelier of a smart couturiers.

A woman of 40, in an old fashioned gown and with thin and badly dressed hair, looks passe entirely, while her friend of 55, in smartest array, is young in every movement. Her stylish gown swings about her with an air of distinction, and her fashionable hat shades her smooth forehead. Her face is framed in ruches and boas and medici collars, and with softly pompadoured hair modishly undule. She stands and walks with the erect carriage and the little jerky trip of a young woman; she sits with her skirts sweeping the floor beside her, her feet together or easily crossed, instead of flouncing down on her back breadths and folding her hands over a wide lap. Altogether she is a replica of her daughter.—Boston Herald.

Chest Handerchiefs.

Many fastidious women wear with their low necked corset covers a large kerchief—the word used by our grandmothers is the only correct one—of the finest and sheerest linen, hemstitched, crossed over the neck and brought up well on the throat. This is to protect the lining of the gowns. One of these kerchiefs after once wearing by the daintiest of women shows dusky shadows upon it, which point a hygienic moral.

Sensible Dame Fashion—she is at bottom an old lady of much common sense—has not as yet provided a covering for the bare arms that are thrust into elegantly lined gowns. My lady does not realize how much she needs them, but she would be horrified at the thought of wearing another garment next her skin for two weeks without submitting it to the laundress.—New York Times.

WILMINGTON, N. C.

FRIDAY MORNING, JULY 2, 1897

COAL MINERS STRIKE.

TWO HUNDRED AND FIFTY THOUSAND MEN INVOLVED.

An Unequalled Condition of Suffering and Distress Brought About by the Remorseless Greed of the Coal Barons.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

TERRE HAUTE, IND., July 1.—The Express will say to-morrow: Next Sunday, or prior to that day, circulars will be placed in the hands of all the bituminous coal miners in the United States, calling them out on strike. It is estimated that 250,000 men will be involved. Pennsylvania, Indiana, Illinois and parts of West Virginia and Kentucky will contribute to the movement. The strike is to enforce the Columbus scale of 69 cents per ton for Pennsylvania, 60 cents for Ohio, 60 cents for Indiana and 55 cents for Illinois. When the Columbus scale was adopted it was not thought advisable to attempt its enforcement. A committee was then appointed to take in hand the matter of a strike, and to order one as soon as such a course seemed opportune. This committee has decided that the time has come to act.

STREATOR, ILL., July 1—A mass meeting of miners here to day voted unanimously to go on strike now, and not wait for a general suspension order. As a consequence no coal is being mined here, and nearly 2,000 miners are idle.

BRAIDWOOD, ILL., July 1.—The miners of the entire Wilmington field met at Glacken's Grove to day and decided by a unanimous vote to go on strike when the national officers shall order a suspension of work.

CHICAGO, ILL., July 1.—W. D. Ryan, secretary of the United Mine Workers of Illinois, has written an open letter to United States Senator Mason, in which he says:

"The stand taken by you in behalf of the patriots in Cuba deserves the commendation of all liberty-loving people, but let me call your attention to the condition of 40,000 of your constituents—the coal miners of Illinois. The insane competition inaugurated by the coal operators has brought about a condition of suffering and destitution which was never equalled. We have been forced to accept reduction after reduction until the price now paid is so low that miners cannot earn an average of seventy-five cents a day, and the mines work only half time. Taking an average of a dollar a day and three days work a week a miner earns $12 a month. With a family of five—a fair average—the wife has less than three cents for a meal to say nothing of clothes, rent, etc. I doubt if any more lives have been lost in Cuba since the insurrection commenced than in the mines of Illinois during the same time, and I am certain there are no more women and children hungry in Cuba at present than among the families of the miners of Illinois. Do something to put the idle miners of Illinois to work at a fair rate of wages and I will guarantee that every miner in Illinois will contribute at least one day's wages every month for the benefit of the down-trodden people of Cuba."

JOLIET, ILL., June 13.—A telegram to-night from McGlackens Grove near Braidwood, in the Northern Illinois coal field, gives the following confirmation of the report that there will be a general strike of the miners: "At the mass meeting to-day of the miners every place in the northern district agrees to come out in the national suspension. All miners will lay down their tools when the call is made for suspension, which will be inside of one week.

POLICE PATROL

To Protect the Florida Coast from Infectious Diseases

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

TAMPA, FLA., July 1.—Assistant Surgeon General Wilna, of the Marine Hospital Service, and A. H. Glennar, of the St. Louis Hospital, are here to confer with State Health Officer Porter about protecting the Florida coast from infectious diseases. The result will be that the National and State Boards of Health will unite at once and place a police patrol along the Florida coast from Key West to Charlotte harbor and up to Anclote, using small launches. The recent appearance of smallpox at Fort Meade has caused this extra effort, as it has been demonstrated how easily the disease could come into the State.

NEGRO POSTMASTERS

Will Not be Appointed for Places Like Atlanta, Savannah and Charleston.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

ATLANTA, GA., July 1.—A Washington special to the Journal says: Judson Lyons, the negro, will not be postmaster of Augusta. Secretary Gage has said so. Bill Pledger and Pink Morton the two well known Georgia Republicans, had an interview with the Secretary to-day in reference to Southern politics. Mr. Gage said that a colored man would not be appointed postmaster at places like Atlanta, Savannah and Charleston. The Postmaster General said this was a social as well as a political matter and that he would not inflict on any community a colored postmaster, provided it never had one before.

COTTON BAGGING, COTTON TIES AND FLOOR MATTING.

Tariff Bill Very Near Completion in the Senate—Debate in the House—Republicans Arraigned for Not Taking Action on Cuban Belligerency Resolution.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

SENATE.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—The Finance Committee suffered several unexpected reverses during the progress of the Tariff bill to-day, being defeated on three important votes. Cotton bagging was placed on the free list, 30 to 25, and cotton ties also, by a vote of 29 to 28 The duty on white pine lumber was reduced from $2 00 to $1 00 per thousand, 33 to 31. The amendment on pine occasioned the greatest surprise, and led to a general breaking up of party lines on both sides of the chamber. During the early stages of the debate the duty on lumber, including pine, was placed at $2.00, after a protracted contest. To-day Senator Teller returned to the contest and moved to place white pine lumber on the free list. The amendment was defeated by the close vote of 33 to 33. four Republicans. Baker, Carter, Hansbrough and Quay, joining with the Democrats, Populists and Silver Republicans in the affirmative, while three Democrats, Bacon, McEnery and Martin, voted with the Republicans in the negative. Following up this close vote, Senator Mantle, Silver Republican, moved to reduce the rate on white pine from $2 to $1 and this was carried by a majority of one. Two Republicans, Baker and Carter, voted with the Democrats in the affirmative and three Democrats, Bacon, McEnery and Martin, with the Republicans in the negative.

The bill is now completed with the exception of the reciprocity section and some comparatively minor paragraphs. Much progress was made to day in clearing up detached paragraphs heretofore passed over. Only three of these—coal tar, potash and tea—remain, so that these items, the reciprocity section, and the brief internal revenue and administrative provisions are all that is left of the bill to be disposed of before the final vote is taken.

The proposed amendment placing cotton bagging on the free list was considered at length. Senator Pettus, of Alabama, had previously given notice of the amendment as follows: "Bagging for cotton, gunny cloth and all similar material suitable for covering cotton, composed wholly or in part of hemp, flax, jute or jute butts."

Senator Pettus spoke in support of the amendment, saying he desired to avoid a party contest and expected to secure Republican votes. Senator White moved to extend the amendment to burlaps and grain bags made of burlap.

As finally amended the proposed paragraph is as follows:

"Bagging for cotton, gunny cloth and similar fabrics, suitable for covering cotton, composed of single yarns made of jute, jute butts or hemp; plain woven fabrics, bags and sacks of single jute or hemp yarns, by whatever name known, and burlaps and bags for grain made of burlap"

In this form the amendment was agreed to—30 to 25. The affirmative vote was Democratic. Senators Allen, Cannon, Heitfeld, Kyle, Mantle and Teller, also voted yea. The negative vote was Republican, with the exception of Senator Jones, of Nevada.

Senator Bacon's amendment placing cotton ties on the free list was then considered. After a brief explanation by Senator Bacon the vote was taken and the detail was substantially the same as the previous vote.

An amendment placing floor matting, including Chinese matting, on the free list was agreed to without division. these mattings having been taken from the dutiable list by a close vote some weeks ago.

The House paragraph placing on the free list hides and skins not specifically provided for, was restored.

Paragraph 533½, placing on the free list regalia and gems for use by societies, was agreed to with slight modifications.

The paragraph relating to the personal effects of persons arriving in the United States was modified so that the effects taken abroad may be brought back without limit, while effects acquired abroad and admissible free are to be limited to $100,

At 5 35 the bill was laid aside, and after an executive session the Senate adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Mr. Settle of Kentucky, Democrat, after the journal had been read in the House to-day, raised a question as to the truth of the journal of last Monday's proceedings, by offering an amendment to correct the journal so as to make it show that "the Speaker, in pursuance of the rule heretofore adopted, declared the House adjourned until Thursday." Upon this amendment he got the floor and proceeded with an extended speech on the general question of the power of the House to adjourn over three days at a time.

He drifted into a general arraignment of the Republicans for not taking action on the Bankruptcy bill and the Cuban belligerency resolution. "You have acted in utter defiance of public sentiment," he cried. "You asked for time. You predicted great things. Calhoun went to Cuba; Calhoun returned from Cuba; Calhoun went home. Nothing was done. Calhoun has been forgotten and so has Cuba. There is indifference as to whether a civil government or a state of war exists in Cuba."

Several times points of order were made that Mr. Settle's remarks were irrelevant to the amendment, points which were sustained by the Speaker. When Mr. Settle referred to the municipal elections at "Chicago, Cincinnati, Columbus and Canton," as an indication of the public disapproval of the House's inaction and a forerunner of that November day in 1900, which would prove the Armageddon and the Waterloo of the Republican party, the Speaker again rapped him to order and Mr. Dingley and Mr. Bailey crossed swords over the question as to whether Mr. Settle's remarks were in order.

Mr. Dingley contended that the Kentuckian's remarks were wide of the motion and Mr. Bailey that it was always proper to speak of public opinion. "We have always had respect for public opinion," said the latter, "and we think it proper to lay it before you for your instruction and guidance." (Democratic applause.)

In concluding, Mr. Settle roused Democratic enthusiasm by asserting that his side proposed to hold up the hands of "the lion-hearted Democrat of Nebraska, until his banner was planted on the topmost heights of victory."

The minority demanded the yeas and nays on Mr. Settle's motion, and the amendment was rejected—90 to 15. The journal was approved.

Mr. Knowles of South Dakota, Populist, rose to a question of personal privilege and sent to the clerk's desk and had read an Associated Press dispatch, dated at Lewiston, Me., in which Prof. L. C. Bateman charged, on the alleged authority of Mr. Knowles, that the middle-of-the road Populists had accepted $1,500 from the proceeds of Mr. Bryan's book with the understanding that nothing should be done to prevent fusion in 1900.

Mr. Knowles denounced Mr. Bateman's statement as a willful falsehood without a shadow of foundation. Mr. Dingley objected to the airing of private grievances in the House. He said the gentleman might "hire a hall" if he desired to make a personal explanation. Mr. Knowles insisted, however, that he had a right to denounce a statement that was "false as hell," and the Speaker allowed him to proceed. Mr. Knowles then read letters in vindication of himself.

The message of the President, recommending an appropriation of $600,000 for re-building the immigration station at Ellis Island, was laid before the House.

A bill of local importance was passed, and at 1.30 p. m the House adjourned until Monday.

Representative Lacy, of Iowa, to day introduced in the House a bill to extend the powers and the duties of the Fish Commission to include game birds and other wild birds useful to man. The bill enlarges the power of the Commission as to provide for the propagation of game birds and empowers it to purchase or cause to be captured game and other wild birds useful to man. The object of the bill is to aid in the restoration of such birds in forests of the United States and also to aid in the introduction of new and valuable varieties or species of American or foreign birds in localities where they have not heretofore existed.

CINCINNATI RACES.

The Oakley Derby—Ornament Again a Winner—Also a Most Exciting Contest.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

CINCINNATI, July 1.—Ornament is a triple derby winner. He won that distinction to-day in the Oakley Derby, after one of the most exciting struggles ever seen on the local track. Tillo, the great three-year-old, from Turney Brothers' string, forced the mighty son of Imp Order to a head in the big event to day and in one more jump the race would have resulted in Tillo's favor. Over 10,000 people witnessed the running of the derby and a resounding cheer went up when the judges hung out Ornament's number as winner of the hardest struggle the gallant racer ever put up.

The track was in perfect shape and the race was a pretty contest throughout. At the drop of the flag Ornament was the first to show with the others in a close bunch. As the field passed the grand stand Dr. Catlett was a nose in front of Boanerges; going the next quarter of a mile Dr. Catlett increased his lead to two lengths, but gave up at the six-furlong pole in favor of Boanerges. As the bunch turned on the back-stretch bound for home, Ornament was seen to move up and in the stretch he was ten lengths in front. Then the real race was on. Tillo came from fourth position and Williams made a desperate effort to overtake the leader, but Tillo was seen to falter under him and Clayton worked with whip and spur to keep his mount in front. Suddenly Tillo regained his speed and was again after the leader, and came gamely every jump, but could not head the great Ornament, who, although straightened out under the fierce drive, managed to hold on long enough to win by a short head from Tillo, who beat Fleischmann six lengths for the place. The distance—a mile and a quarter—was run in 2 08¼.

PEARY'S ARCTIC EXPEDITION.

Steamer Hope Engaged for the Use of the Explorers.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

ST. JOHNS, N. F., July 1.—Capt. John Bartlett to-day completed negotiations with her owner for the hire of the steamer Hope to convey Lieutenant Peary on his Arctic expedition. She will go into dry dock immediately, receive a thorough overhauling and sail for Boston on Wednesday next.

Lieutenant Peary and a party of scientists will join her about the 14th inst. The Hope will call at Sydney for coal. Then going north by way of Belle Isle she will land her first party at Resolution Island, the second at some point of South Greenland to survey the coast and a third on Wilcox Island, from which Lieutenant Peary will attempt to remove the large meteorite which he discovered on a former expedition. Captain Bartlett takes with him the same crew as last year. His reputation stands high as an Arctic navigator. The plan is for the Hope to return in September.

SULLIVAN AND FITZ.

Under No Circumstances Will They be Allowed to Fight in Brooklyn.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

NEW YORK, July 1.—Superintendent McKelvey, of the Brooklyn police, has effectually blocked the Sullivan-Fitzsimmons sparring match scheduled for July 5th at Ambrose Park. He has instructed the police not to allow the match to take place under any circumstances. The park officials will not even be allowed to begin the erection of a platform for the fight. An evasion of the instructions was attempted when the Park people learned that the fight could not come off even under the Horton law. They allowed it to be generally understood that the fight would come off under the guise of an illustrated lecture. Superintendent McKelvey forbade even this arrangement, however.

CIRCUIT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES, EASTERN DISTRICT OF NORTH CAROLINA

The State Trust Company of New York against Wilmington, Newbern and Norfolk Railway Company.

WHEREAS, On the 26th day of May, 1897, in the Circuit Court of the United States for the Eastern District of North Carolina, a decree was made in the above entitled suit by the Honorable Charles H. Simonton, Circuit Judge, foreclosing the mortgages of the Wilmington, Onslow and East Carolina Railway Company and the East Carolina Land and Railway Company, now consolidated into the Wilmington, Newbern and Norfolk Railway Company, the defendant therein, said mortgages being mentioned and described in said complainants' bill of complaint; and

WHEREAS, It is therein ordered, adjudged and decreed that all the corporate property now owned or hereafter to be acquired by the said Wilmington, Newbern and Norfolk Railway Company in the State of North Carolina, now operated as one continuous line from the city of Wilmington to Newbern, in said State, and all its estates, right, title, interest and equity of redemption therein, that is to say, all of its railroads now constructed and in operation extending from Wilmington to Newbern in the said State of North Carolina, and yet to be constructed, including extensions, branches, curves and sidetracks, and including rights of way, road bed, superstructures, iron, steel, rails, ties, splices, chains, bolts, nuts, splices, all land and depot grounds, station houses and depots, viaducts, water-tanks, bridges, timber, material and property purchased or to be purchased or owned by it, for the construction, equipment or operation of said road, all machine shops, tools, implements and personal property used therein or upon or along said railroad or at its stations; all engines, tenders, machinery and all kinds of rolling stock, whether now owned or hereafter purchased by said railroad company, and all other property of the said company now owned or hereafter to be acquired, and all its rights or privileges therein or appertaining thereto, and all revenues, tolls and income of said railroad and property, and all franchises and rights of said railroad company, and all property and rights acquired or hereafter to be acquired by virtue and under authority thereof, be sold under the direction of Alfred M. Waddell, the undersigned Master Commissioner, and the proceeds of said sale applied to the satisfaction of said judgment, interest and costs, except such as is otherwise provided for in said decree; and

WHEREAS, It is further ordered, adjudged and decreed that said Master Commissioner shall sell said property for cash, or for cash and bonds, as an entirety; and

While the sun shines the farmer makes hay. Just so with us, when the days are warm we sell our Summer Goods. We have had an elegant Spring trade, but adding two large stocks in one makes us very much over-stocked. Our store is as full now as it should be in October. We will very much need the room, as we are now looking forward to the next season. Our Summer Goods we are going to sell, and if prices will talk, here they go:

1,000 yards on hand of Checked and Striped White Muslins at only 4c per yd.
